AVAILABLE TO PROMISE

Successful sales are dependent on having the right stock available at the right time to meet a customer's needs. In a fast moving environment with many different types of demands on this stock, it can be difficult to draw all relevant information together in a meaningful and accessible way. The Available to Promise (ATP) functionality in Microsoft Dynamics GP software¹ provides the perfect solution allowing the user not only to project future stock availability, but also the facility to update specific transactions and review the effect on that overall projection.

Key Features

Product Summary

An easy to read summary of every possible stock total related to the item including free forward and provisional orders not yet allocated.

Transaction Merge and Sequencing

ATP finds every un-posted transaction in the system for an individual item. It looks through all modules including Bill of Materials, SOP, POP and Inventory to find transactions not yet posted that will affect stock. These are arranged in anticipated date sequence to produce a running projected inventory balance.

Calculate Ship Date

Allows the user to enter a quantity. The system will then return the earliest date that this quantity can be supplied whilst still meeting all existing commitments.

Drill-down and Update

A powerful feature of the ATP module is the ability to drill down to any transaction listed and then amend its contents before selecting re-display to see the revised stock projection.

Application Power

ATP provides the authorised user with the tools to make key decisions quickly enabling the most efficient and effective use of stock. This makes it easy to see the impact of one transaction on others.

Impact on Sales Orders

Project how Sales Orders will be affected if a Purchase Receipt is delayed by, say, three days.

Impact on Deliveries

Show the impact of promising the customer immediate delivery even though all of the stock appears to be committed.

Check Allocated Stock

Examine the effect of stock tied up unnecessarily in provisional allocations and transactions that may never take place.

Confirm Stock Availability Date

Confirm when stock will be available in order to give a customer a firm promise of when a product will be deliverable.

¹Available To Promise has been purchased by Microsoft Business Solutions and is now incorporated into Microsoft Dynamics GP software from v.7.5.
